Establishment Of The Church

Introduction

The establishment of Lord's church was a momentous event for the history of mankind. Just when and under what circumstances did it occur? As one might guess, such an event in God's scheme of redemption did not go unannounced or unheralded. In this lesson, we will pinpoint this event using scriptural arguments. The time of the establishment of the church has implications for the church in the matter of kingdom law and it also has implications for denominationalism.

Introduction

Religious groups have adopted a variety of names to describe themselves, including such names as “Church of the Humanitarian God,” “American Catholic Syro-Antiochean Church,” “Faith Tabernacle Church,” “First Christian Faith Missionary Baptist Church” and “Church of Jesus Lamb of God.” Does it make any difference what we call ourselves religiously? Or is it only important that we belong to some church (whatever it is called!)? This lesson will address those questions.

Introduction

How did God intend for the church to be organized? Some churches have a governing board of deacons; others are governed completely by the local evangelist (evangelistic oversight). Most denominations have some kind of authoritative supra-church governing body. Is the organization of the church to be dictated by our own wisdom? Since the church belongs to Christ, in this lesson we will consulting the word of God for answers about the organization of the church on both universal and local levels.

Although the discussion in this lesson will necessarily be brief, no study of the organization of the local church would be complete without some attention paid to the work and qualifications of elders and deacons. The work of these men is so important to the spiritual health of the local congregation that they must be selected with great care and complete respect for scriptural instructions.

Discussion Questions

1. What is the organization of the universal church? The local church?

Introduction

As blood-bought people, the church has good reason to worship their God. He saved us and provides us with all things that pertain to life and godliness. Has God simply left us to our devices and opinions in the matter of acceptable worship? Is all worship acceptable? The premise of this lesson is that God has left us instructions concerning proper worship. This lesson will also focus on what “worship” is and how that concept is applied to the various acts in which Christians engage on an individual and collective basis.

The subject matter of this lesson is a broad one, with the consequence that the “relevant” list of scriptures is more extensive and our discussion will cover general principles rather than covering detailed and numerous specific questions about our acts of worship.

Introduction

We learn from Jesus in Matthew 20 that the church is a place of work. But what work does the Lord expect His church to be doing? Are we free to choose whatever “good works” appeal to us or seem appropriate for our cultural circumstances? The last several generations of Christians in this country have seen the assets, time and energy of the Lord’s church diverted to many things which are not properly the work of local congregations as collectives. Institutionalism, the sponsoring church and the social gospel are all issues which have created tension and division among the Lord’s disciples. As in previous lessons, we will focus our study on what the word of God identifies as the work given to His people.

This lesson will necessarily discuss the fundamental question of whether a local congregation can do anything that an individual Christian can do. Although many of the scriptures listed below have been listed and discussed in previous lessons, they are repeated here because of their relevance to this topic also.
